

Personality comparison for bblayk and jimadams13092

bblayk has an Introverted iNtuitive Feeling Perceiver (INFP) personality commonly referred to as "The Idealistic Philosopher" jimadams13092 has an Extroverted Sensing Feeling Judge (ESFJ) personality commonly referred to as "The Dutiful Host"

bblayk's Love Type

jimadams13092's Love Type

Imagine a deep lush valley, caressed by flowers and trees that eternally blossom, inhabited by animals that serve as gentle companions and by people who spend their days loving, creating, and selflessly serving humanity. This is the world of the rare (only about 3 percent of the population) Idealistic Philosopher: the person who is forever striving to live in a perfect world where love and harmony abound.

INFP when in love

As an idealistic Philosopher, you believe that love requires a profound emotional and spiritual connection. You may also believe that, to attain this desired state, you will have to endure a great deal of pain and sacrifice. Yet all the suffering will be worth it once you find your perfect love. When that blessed day comes, you will be a complete person, as you and your partner will work together to make the world a better place. In the beginning of a relationship, you tend to idealize your mate as the greatest person in the world; you'd easily give up your life for him or her. Later, when reality intrudes, you may find yourself disappointed as you realize that no real human being can match the fantastic images of love and romance you created in your imagination. Fortunately, despite your disillusionment, you somehow recover and begin to accept the flaws of your partner, ever so slowly, while still wishing you could change him or her into the perfect image you had when you first fell in love.

INFP where to meet

Where can you meet an Idealistic Philosopher? Idealistic Philosophers love writing, psychology, the arts, and relationships, and are drawn to activities that involve a crusade or mission. You can bump into them at bookstores, especially in sections related to the preceding topics. You can also find Idealistic Philosophers at the theater, art galleries, and museums - often walking slowly, by themselves, lost in their thoughts.

Idealistic Philosopher with Dutiful Host: "Let's Throw a Party To Change the World"

The Joys: The somewhat reclusive Idealistic Philosopher actually likes it when his or her outgoing Dutiful Host creates their social agenda and monitors the flow of people in their lives. Dutiful Hosts like the quieter, calmer nature of their Idealistic Philosopher--the perfect balance to their hyperkinetic emotional energy and often frantic social style. As sensitive people, both of them enjoy an emotionally giving and sharing type of relationship.

The Frustrations: Because they often differ in their communication styles, they can have some problems. Dutiful Hosts usually want to talk things over as soon as an issue comes up, while Idealistic Philosophers typically want to think things over first. They also have different organizational preferences: Dutiful Hosts strive to live in a neat, orderly, time-sensitive way, and get upset when they're not able to. Idealistic Philosophers don't mind being a little late or messy if it means they can be creative and spontaneous. Due to their lifestyle differences, the Idealistic Philosopher could wind up feeling nagged and pressured by the spic and span Dutiful Host, and the Dutiful Host could feel bitter and resentful at always having to play the role of mom or dad to their Idealistic Philosopher's helpless messy child.

LoveTypes is a registered copyright of Dr. Alexander Avila and LoveType® is a registered trademark of Dr. Alexander Avila.

