Longitudinal Studies in Clinical Psychoendocrinology and Sexology: Methodology

Abstract

There are five universal exigencies of being human, against which a person's existence can be evaluated: pairbondage, troopbondage, abidance, yleptance, and foredoomance. They constitute a template from which a standardized agenda or schedule of inquiry is generated, as needed, for a particular research investigation. The schedule of inquiry is painstakingly designed ahead of time so as to ensure coverage of all the variables relevant to a particular study. For economy of expense and effort, subjects conclude their own prior interview by summarizing it on tape, with the interviewer making a written record, verbatim, of what will become subheadings in the transcript. Inquiry progresses from an open-ended to a forced choice interrogatory. Topics in the public domain open the way to inquiry on personally sensitive issues. So also do parables drawn from actual cases and used as personalized narrative projective tests. A cumulative record, covering as many as 25 years, is indexed so that relevant material can be located, abstracted and classified for any particular study. A jury of two or more then uses the abstracted data to fill out a prepared data schedule, using its own standardized scoring or rating criteria. By contrast, an ordinary questionnaire uses standardized questions and each subject applies his or her own unstandardized scoring or rating criteria in answering them. In the final step the jury's ratings are tabulated on a master chart that consolidates the scores of a group of subjects and controls, ready for statistical analysis.

Introduction

Over the years, I've received from students and qualified professionals scores, if not hundreds of requests for the instruments or tools used to measure gender identity, sexual desire, aggressiveness, and other inferential constructs used in psychoendocrinology and sexology. In my lexicon, it is presumptuous and grandiose to use the terms, instruments and tools, as synonyms not for bench-science apparatus, but for clinical tests. Clinical psychoendocrinology and sexology are reliant for the most part on psychological tests. To call them instruments or tools gives a false sense of mensurational accuracy.

Longitudinal Studies in Clinical Psychoendocrinology and Sexology 101

Three Categories of Test

There are three categories of test used in clinical psychoendocrinology and sexology. In category one is the test as a standardized sampling of a psychological function demonstrated in the here and now—for example, the intelligence test. It tests intelligence by requiring responses to questions and problems that necessitate the use of intelligence for their solution; and it presumes that the score is predictive of the level at which intelligence can be expected to function in general.

In category two is the test as a standardized scale of opinion, attitude, or self-evaluation—for example the personality inventory or questionnaire. Each item requires a forced-choice response of the either/or, multiple-choice, or numerical-rating type, thus limiting the range of information a respondent may provide. It is presumed that the items test not only verbalization but also the deeds or actions which that verbalization purports to represent.

In category three is the test as an interview with a standardized agenda or schedule of inquiry. It is also known as a structured interview, to differentiate it from a nondirective interview. The standardization in this type of test applies not to the fixed wording of both the questions and the forced-choice responses, as in a standardized scale, but to the agenda and to the scoring criteria used by the professionals who do the scoring.

Standardized-Agenda Interview

To avoid the stiltedness of fixed-word questions, each topic in an interview with a standardized agenda is deliberately introduced with open-ended inquiry. Open-endedness allows the respondent free rein to define the topic in terms of what it means to him/her personally. Subsequently, the inquiry becomes less open-ended, until eventually each particular topic may be closed with an interrogatory, employing forced-choice questions. Such questions are designed to get specific responses to specific details of chronology, prevalence, location, frequency, measurements, and so on.

An open-ended inquiry may be as straightforward as an announcement of the next topic on the standardized schedule of inquiry—for example, "Play. Tell me about your child's play." This straightforward approach is based on the premise that the topic is in the public domain and poses no threat of stigmatization, self-incrimination or breach of confidentiality.

In some instances, it is necessary to specify, not assume, that a topic is indeed in the public domain, even though it is also partly in the private domain. For example: "The bombing of abortion clinics has been in the news recently." If the respondent indicates familiarity with this news, it is then feasible to inquire as to his/her ideas about it. Thereafter, it becomes feasible to lead into more personal reference with respect to past history and future prospects re-

In my lexicon, it is presumptuous and grandiose to use the terms, instruments and tools, as synonyms not for bench-science apparatus, but for clinical tests. Clinical psychoendocrinology and sexology are reliant for the most part on psychological tests. To call them instruments or tools gives a false sense of mensurational accuracy.

- On this date I finally owe ZERO dollars rather than $1,352,800 of the debt I ALONE owed - as a civil inpatient not qualified for Medicaid because "too rich!" - following being JAMMED UP by being dosed with PCP in 2003. The charges for this inordinately prolonged "hospitalization" had aged out past six years WITHOUT EVER HAVING BEEN BILLED. NOT ONCE!
- (Six years is the legal deadline for suing for payment of a past-due debt in New York State.)

The inclusion of my letter of October 27, 1997 as evidence in my "Recommitment Hearing" to "support" the claim that I was "Dangerously Mentally Ill" is so astonishing - given that I was almost entirely correct in my assertions, as borne out by HISTORY? - I feel compelled to include it here.

THERE WILL BE A BRIEF INTERRUPTION IN THE FLOW OF THIS TIMELINE! THANK YOU!

Susan Heagney

Regional Forensic Unit

Rochester, NY 14620-3005

Dear Ms. Heagney,

Here are the notes from Dr. Matusiewicz and Ellen Stotz, along with some journal articles on Geschwind Syndrome and an extensive collection of personal material which helps establish my diagnosis as Temporal Lobe Epilepsy with a seizure focus on the left side (my writing and songwriting amply document relevant symptoms including hypergraphia, anger, chronic mild paranoia, and intense philosophical/religious pre-occupation-including revelatory religious states). The source code for dataComet is the ultimate proof of hypergraphia; it's copyrighted and contains trade secrets proprietary to database, Inc. and Cornell University, so I can't share it. I intend to bring along a copy to at least one interview to give you some idea of the size and complexity of the code.

In my opinion the instant offense occurred during a classic attack of schizophreniform post-ictal psychosis (cf. Slater et. al. "The schizophrenia-like psychoses of epilepsy", Br. J. Psychiatry, 1963;109:95-150) following seizures prompted by extreme stress AnneRose 5/22/18; but see the primary influence of the 'phantom hallucinogen' mCFF in the picture: [A Three-Way Train Wreck on P450IID6], use of psychotropic medications as prescribed (Prozac and Trazodone), and abstinence from self-medication using cannabis (an effective anti-convulsant medication; note that withdrawal from legal anti-convulsants can also induce seizures). During the four months over which I completely abstained from cannabis while on Prozac (2/97 - 5/97) I had my first experience of disabling hypomania (including flight of ideas and intense suicidal preoccupation), indicating that delirium due to serotonin syndrome may also have been a factor in my behavior on 2/6/97.

My stress and tendency to paranoia was of course dramatically intensified due to these truths, which I know as a certainty and from which I will not budge: that

- 1) I was DWI 12/22/96 only because I was given a spiked drink, [TRUE]
- 2) Sgt. Curatolo nearly rear-ended me in order to provoke me to speed (see the transcript of his testimony, which strongly supports my position), [TRUE]
- 3) There was no sexual or other assault on Susan Hamann 12/29/96, rather I had good grounds to believe our activities were consensual, [TRUE] and
- 4) I never threatened to do physical harm of any sort to Sgt. Curatolo. [TRUE]

The police were indeed following me around on the evening of 2/6/97, for reasons I could not comprehend except as part of a (non-existent) "larger plot", since I was unaware that the Ithaca Police Department had issued a alert (12/30/96) claiming I had made a "threat against a police officer" in which I supposedly vowed "to kill Sgt. Curatolo at the earliest opportunity." I was not allowed to legally communicate in any way with Susan Hamann due to an Order of Protection from that date, which was issued pursuant to Susan's false claims (PTSD strikes again!), so I could not correct my delusional misapprehensions regarding her possible relationship to Clarice Starling ('Silence of the Lambs', Thomas Harris) without committing a Class F felony.

Indeed, since I had no countervailing sources of data, was not allowed to contact Susan, and had been cut off from therapeutic counselling, my beliefs at that time cannot even be described as truly "delusional": I could have been stopped at any point along my course with the "stroke of a feather": you'll note that I have been invariably described as "cooperative" by the police, and that indeed this was held against me as evidence that I was "rational" by legal standards and possessed the criminal mens rea at the time of the arson.

The irony is that the arson occurred only as a result of an incredible string of coincidences, beginning with my first reading of Silence of the Lambs on 2/3/97, building to the point at which I experienced congruent auditory hallucinations beginning midnight 2/6/97, and culminating in the (real) presence of a three-foot tall three-fingered left hand in Susan's trailer across from a can of inflammable material neatly set on the floor, resting on mirrors, below three hat-racks with summer hats set on their tops, a tableaux which is chilling if you consider its relationship to the 5-fingered Hannibal Lecter and the "tableaux" which are a prominent theme in the Silence of the Lambs. You cannot comprehend the fear I felt without reading the book, in which Susan's character and characteristics nicely fit the character of Clarice Starling (to the extent of having actually used the key image of Clarice self-referentially without referring to it as a source-Clarice as crow, distracted by shiny things without value), and accepting that I *really* believed at the time that Hannibal Lecter actually existed and had threatened to unleash biotoxins based on anthrax, and possessed a clear and deep understanding of the horrifying ramifications which would ensue if such a threat were carried out.

I later figured out that Hannibal Lecter was, indeed, so convincing because he was based in large part on a real doctor, fortunately a humanitarian: Dr. John Money, forensic sexologist and pediatric neuroendocrinologist. I've also been able to speak with Susan since the Order of Protection expired at the end of June, and I believe her disavowal of any connection whatsoever with either the book or with the FBI (she put it this way: "No... I always wanted to work for the CIA, though!" Evidently her quotation was unconscious, since she had been given the book but did not recall reading it).

Please note that I reject all diagnoses that claim I suffer from Bipolar I Disorder, Borderline Personality Disorder, current Alcohol Abuse, and Cannabis Dependence. I believe my chronic light use of cannabis (preferring .25-.5 gm/day of "commercial" sativa, relatively low in psychoactive THC content and relatively high in non-psychoactive anti-convulsant CBD content) [BOLD ADDED] has been an appropriate and medically justifiable (if largely unwitting) means of coping with the unpleasant psychological and physical symptoms I suffer, which include not only the symptoms of TLE but also symptoms associated with MS or polyneuropathy (most remarkably the progressive distal and occipital parasthesia and accompanying confusional states which practically disabled me early in January 1997).

Also, contrary to claims that I "reject the frame of self-medication" (Amari Meader) and reject scientific research on cannabis as "all govt-political" (Fran Markover), I have consistently maintained to my therapists from my first session with Dr. Matusiewicz that I am self-medicating, and that the preponderance of scientific research and reputable medical opinion supports the claim that chronic cannabis use is less harmful to human health than use of tobacco, alcohol, or benzodiazepines, while having notable therapeutic benefits. Current authoritative support for this position includes the British Medical Association, the American Public Health Association, the National Association of Addictions Nurses, and the editorial boards of Lancet, JAMA, and the NEJM, along with reporting committees established by the NIH and the AMA. [BOLD ADDED]

Sorry about getting this out a little late, and the volume of the material involved, but I'd like the record to be complete, and proof of hypergraphia must by definition be abundant!

Thanks,
Sincerely,
Kevin Eric Saunders a/k/a bonze blayk

CONTENTS:

- 1) Notes by Anna Matusiewicz, M.D.
- 2) Notes by Ellen Stotz, M.S.W.
- 3) Material regarding diagnosis of TLE on the basis of inter-ictal personality disorders and medicinal applications of cannabis relevant to the condition.
- 4) Materials pertinent to the arson offense (including excerpts from Sgt. Curatolo's testimony under oath and analysis of Silence of the Lambs gathered from the WWW 2/5/97).
- 5) KES/bb CV and documents regarding self-diagnosis.
- 6) KES/bb letters and articles (documenting hypergraphia with heavily philosophical content).
- 7) KES/bb musical materials:
  - a) Lyrics (moralistic philosophizing in a poetic context).
  - b) "Auld l'Anxiety" tape (which also establishes my competence with audio technologies, relevant to my accepting the "radio messages" as technically feasible communications).
  - c) Live videotape, including a performance of "Burnin' for You" from 1995 (also documenting my "peculiar", "affected" patterns of speech outside therapeutic contexts).
- 8) Photographs (please cf. the family portrait with Susan every time you note a reference to Clarice Starling's physical appearance in Silence of the Lambs-particularly her hair!).

And? A certain psychiatrist claimed I suffered from "grandiose persecutory delusions: He believes that pharmaceutical manufacturers conspire to keep marijuana off the market" - but guess what?

SO DOES SENATOR KIRSTEN GILLIBRAND! - in Forbes magazine: "Senator Calls Out Big Pharma For Opposing Legal Marijuana" - I was ahead of the curve.

And I have to ask - why did the "mental health" apparatus keep throwing me spitballs when I offered up evidence of what my working life was like, and actual, for-real, reasonably reliable scientific evidence of the utility of cannabis in ameliorating a variety of health conditions?

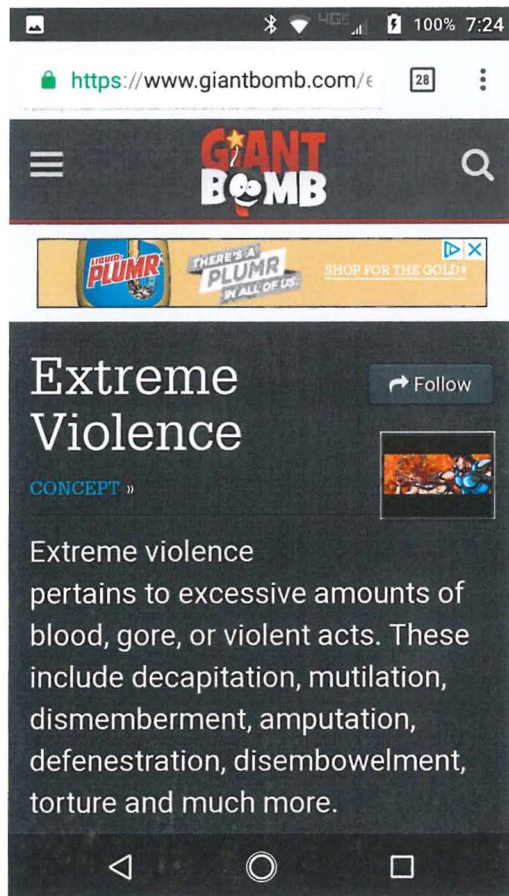

"Could it be? Maybe? Just possibly? Look, is it not obvious? ... it's a fucking conspiracy!" - They brought the Big Lie against me in claiming that I had "a long history of extreme violence against women," and I want to know WHY.

In the popular mind,

HOCHBERGVILLE - 2014-09-05 - wherein Jonathan Hochberg rules the roost! in the world of Ithaca music A/V by... goin' thug on it! NB: I wasn't interested in "ruling" anything, just out to enjoy myself, hang out with Lenora (<3), and get some A/V with high-quality audio post-production done for my friends. Is that a crime? No. But what Jonathan Hochberg did is.

PS: "There are no coincidences," except when there are? The "tendency to perceive connections and meaning between unrelated things" may be a symptom of the early development of schizophrenia known as apophenia.

An apophany (i.e., an instance of apophenia) does not provide insight into the nature of reality nor its interconnectedness, but is a "process of repetitively and monotonously experiencing abnormal meanings in the entire surrounding experiential field". Such meanings are entirely self-referential, solipsistic, and paranoid - "being observed, spoken about, the object of eavesdropping, followed by strangers". - Wikipedia

- "A subject of malicious gossip? In Ithaca? Surely you either jest, or have gone mad!"

(One can readily imagine just how invaluable this concept would prove to the Stasi.)

Now, one might think - similar to modifying the electronics in your computer and finding that it's crashing a lot? - that if you take a psychiatric medication and then suffer from a "mental illness" immediately thereafter, those might be connected, but no! - you just experienced a mental illness, so - "That would be a ridiculous idea! You're just being paranoid, and are now suffering from a SEVERE mental illness, so you REALLY need help!"

LOL on braindead posers posturing as providers of "scientific medicine."

1 As I have elsewhere stated, three words summarizing my character are "flaming, cute, and hyperbolic!" Having been subjected to an episode of severe hacking of my core business computer back in October of 2014, conducted for purposes of bringing psychological warfare on me - rather than the more conventional hijacking of one's machine as an engine for propagating spam or straightforward destruction ...

- I chose thereafter to "cast the net wide," and thus have brazenly tagged any parties who might have been responsible, even deep in the background, to bring them within a field of inquiry, without the forms of qualification and circumspection one would expect in the realms of polite discourse?

And so I beg the indulgence of any parties who might feel offended by my intemperate language or extravagant denunciations; particular labels can serve as tags that may provide insight into the peculiar stylistic traits or modus operandi which distinguish groups involved in antisocial activities, such as bringing cyberwar and other kinds of "social poisoning" against members of our body politic.

In summary: Looking over this timeline, boy, something(s) really stinks here, and it ain't just me and my tendency to go Full Dada! on it when confronted with a pile of steaming bullshit! - LOL

Calculating the probability of any given assertion I make being correct is an exercise left to the reader, preferably with the assistance of high-level tools for collating datastreams and performing network-based semantic analysis available to most technically advanced nation-states.

THE LITTLE HITLER LIBRARY - SUGGESTED READING LIST

The Status Seekers - Vance Packard

Or maybe you prefer Thorstein Veblen, or Nassim Nicholas Taleb, or other researchers relating how people tend to seek high-status roles even when it's killing them (or others).

Hitler's Table Talks - Martin Bormann

There's a researcher who claims that NSDAP #2 man Martin Bormann (or historian Hugh Trevor-Roper) was chock full of shit in claiming these "inspirational lectures by The Man Himself" are accurate? "Whatever."

Our Hitler: A Film from Germany - Hans-Jürgen Syberberg

An 8-hour long meditation - a FILM! - relating how the "Hitler Industry" distorts NSDAP messaging, how inspirational propaganda was crafted using the most modern technologies, and how the shame of WWII undermined the idealism which had been characteristic of the national spirit of Germany, promoting a decline into crass commercialization and consumerism.

Iron Coffins - Herbert A. Werner

You thought the NSDAP was out to WIN this war? This sounds reasonable, but why were all the WunderWaffen promised to the military - like the Schnorkel - always LATE? Why on earth did Adolf Hitler commence a two-front war some six YEARS before Admiral Raeder's building program for the Kriegsmarine was to be complete? (1945)
The Kriegsmarine never had enough submarines to have a good shot at prevailing in the war at sea.
A heartbreaking memoir of the war by a master sailor and submariner who graduated to the command of his own vessel.

Advance to Barbarism - F.J.P. Veale

OK, some claim ("ThreeArrows" on YouTube) that recent studies help rebut the characterization of the bombing of Dresden as a war crime, and that the enormous numbers previously mooted were based on NSDAP propaganda, so that the casualties "only" amounted to about 30,000 dead.
Nevertheless, the exchange of atrocities against civilians in WWII on all sides was morally reprehensible under the laws traditionally held to govern warfare in western culture (specifically Christian Just War doctrine).

Nazi Nexus - Edwin Black

Punchy: A host of American corporations cooperated with the NSDAP in supplying their Engines of War and Extermination - including IBM/Thomas J. Watson, where the advanced tab machine/punchcard-based technologies provided by the Dehomag subsidiary of IBM were crucial both to implementing the Holocaust, and the property transfers that kept "Authentic" Germans on the gravy train. Read it.

They Thought They Were Free: The Germans, 1933-45 - Milton Mayer

My brother sent me this one: years after the war, some village folk were still believing that the cause of the NSDAP was justified, in particular, burning down the local synagogue? "Huh."

Hitler's Beneficiaries - Götz Aly

"Authentic" Volksische Germans benefitted from the war, as the economies of conquered territories were systematically pillaged by the imposition of exploitative banking practices and outright theft.
"World War II was the biggest smash-and-grab in history." - AnneRose Blayk

Hitler's Philosophers - Yvonne Sheratt

Yvonne Sheratt demonstrates that Adolf Hitler started out by recruiting academic philosophers to the cause of the NSDAP. A horror story.
Where the rubber meets the road in life: philosophy! "Sometimes that rubber is the one prominent academic cleansing artist Martin Heidegger used on Hannah Arendt." (discuss)
From the standpoint of any sincere ethicist, Heidegger's "Authenticity" is rubbish: Authentically human? - what? - "Human beings tend to lie a lot: thus, the embrace of The Big Lie is of all aspirations, the most 'truly human!'"
(Did Goebbels write that? No. Does not Heidegger so imply? "Beats me!")

You think by the mannerisms in my writing that perhaps I am "read up" in Nietzsche?

- "Danke schön!" ;-)

Bonze Anne Rose Blayk - 27 May 2018

NB: I use the abbreviation NSDAP for "the Nazi Party," because there are a lot of people out there who will identify themselves as Nazis, but do not accept that the NSDAP was about Exterminationism above all else, and even believe the Holocaust was all a hoax? Sadly, I myself do not believe that is the case.
So: When I talk about Hitler's party and its goals, I try to remain specific: it's the "National Socialist German Workers' Party," in German: "Nationalsozialistische Deutsche Arbeiterpartei," abbreviated NSDAP.
And: The Big Lie of the Adolf Hitler's "National Socialist Party" is that it was in truth 1) Internationalist and 2) Corporatist.
